Survey To Be Conducted In The Town Of Appomattox

A widespread and pressing problem of many town councils and local governments today is how to determine and evaluate the needs of town residents.

According to Appomattox Town Manager, Bill Britton, just such an effort will be made by the town through a citizen survey.

Appomattox residents are urged to attend a public meeting on Thurs., April 7, 1977 at 7 p.m. in the Town Hall. The meeting is being held to inform townspeople about the purpose of the survey, how and when it will be conducted, and to answer any questions.

Bill Britton noted that the study will have two parts. The first part will consist of personal interviews with 130 selected residents from the town. These interviews will be from April 11 to April 21, during the early evening hours by volunteers from Longwood College. The short questionnaire will not require the resident's name and all information will be kept completely confidential. The second part of the study will consist of an exterior survey of all homes in Appomattox and will be conducted several days after the personal interviews.

Town officials have asked for and received the help of Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in preparing and administering the survey. Results of the study will be available to the public in the Town Manager's office. A summary of the findings will also be reported in the Times-Virginian.

Support of the Appomattox townspeople will be greatly appreciated by the town officials and Town Manager, so that Appomattox will be a better place to live, work, and play.

If you are unable to attend the public meeting, further information can be obtained by calling 352-8268 or visiting the Appomattox Town Office.

St. Luke

The Bible Institute that was sponsored by the Cornerstone Baptist Church Union and the Cornerstone Baptist Association convened with the Green Spring Baptist Church, March 28 through April 1st at 7:00 to nine p.m. each day. This was an active and impressive as well as an instructive occasion. It was attended by large groups of people each night.

Instructors were as follows: Ministers and Officers - Rev. T. M. Venerable of Norfolk, Va., Ushers - Rev. James Mclaughlin of Danville, Va., Choir - Mr. Richard Dickerson of Lynchburg, Va. Sunday School - Rev. R. L. Petty of Gretna, Va., Youth - Rev. G. M. Marshall of Lynchburg, Va., Missionary - Rev. C. O. Williams of Halifax Caouty, Director - Mr. D. L. Moore of Cullen, Va.

On Sunday April 3 at 11:00 a.m. the regular preaching services at the St. Luke Baptist Church was well attended by friends and members of the church. Mrs. Corne sister of the pianist was at the piano and the Jr. choir gave the music. Rev. J. E. McLaughlin was in charge. He gave a great message. The text was from Matt 16:20. Subject was "I Must Go To Jerusalem."There was also a very beautiful and touching communion service, which was carried out by the pastor.

The offering was good and one person was rededicated to the church.

On Sunday evening at 6:00 p.m. Rev. Fletcher Hubbard was speaker for the Sunday School. His group of singers also from Lynchburg accompanied him. This was very enjoyable. Rev. Hubbard spoke on the subject, "Going Side By Side With God". He brought out many points of interest, which was food for thought. He said God so loved the world and that we should love one another.

Mr. Milton Nowlin is Supt of Sunday School "Youth in Action" will sponsor a program at St. Luke Sunday at 6:00 p.m. on April 10th. Please come.

The St. Luke church people will join in with the Hat Creek church people in an egg hunt April 11. Come and have clean fun.

BLOODMOBILE VISIT FOR TUESDAY

to pay for blood they had used. Sick people really are in no position to worry about recruiting donors, their chief concern should be to get well. Some people simply have no one to turn to for blood donations. So, each community should have enough donors concerned about the sick so that there would be blood stocked on hospital shelves for anyone who needs it. The blood should be ready when people need it, and this simply involves having people be aware of the need for blood and respond to that need.

So far the people in Appomattox County have met the goal for this county..we feel that they will respond at this visit and our county will continue to be 100% in the blood program.

could meet any decision on wheat marketing quotas. In 1973, a similar situation arose: A National Wheat marketing Quota was proclaimed on April 13, 1973 and a referendum announced. A special Congressional resolution stayed the referendum and a new farm bill was enacted August 10, 1973.

Prior to making a final decision on marketing quotas and acreage allotments for 1978, USDA will give consideration to views and recommendations received from the public. These comments must be made in writing and submitted to the Director, Grains, Oilseeds & Cotton Division, USDA/ASCS P. O. Box 2415, Washington, D. C., 20013. All written submissions will be available for public inspection during normal business hours in the office of the Director, Room 3741 of USDA's South Building.

APPOMATTOX: ONE NATION, NOW

themselves advanced to the western outskirts of Appomattox Court House.

Lee now faced his last decision on a field of battle. As an informal truce brought quiet along the battleline, Lee sought to arrange a meeting with Grant to discuss surrender terms. His only alternative was more futile bloodshed and the destruction of his fast dwindling force.

About 12:15 p.m. Lt. Col. Orville Babcock, aide to Grant, delivered a note to Lee informing him of Grant's willingness to confer on term. At Lee's direction, Col. Charles Marshall, his aide, went off to find a suitable meeting place. A messenger finally found Grant and turned him toward Appomattox Court House, where Lee, Marshall, and Babcock now waited in the parlor of Wilmer McLean's house.

Grant arrived at the red-brick house about 1:30 p.m. after completing a 16 mile ride. Walking his horse to the house, he dismounted and climbed the wide steps. His hard ride was reflected in his casual dress. He wore the uniform of a private soldier, with the tacked-on insigna straps of a lieutenant general, and his trousers and boots were spattered with mud.

Rising when Grant entered, Lee started across the room and the two shook hands briefly with quiet greetings. Lee, by contrast, was dressed faultlessly, with sash and his finest sword buckled to his side. Then Grant's staff entered the room. After some talk, mainly of old army days, Lee turned the conversation to the matter at hand. Grant's terms were generous: all men would be set free upon their promise never to take up arms against the U. S. Government again; officers could keep their sidearms and horses; and men in the ranks who claimed to own horses or mules could keep them, as Grant put it, "to work their little farms."

"This will have the best possible effect upon the men," said Lee. "It will be very gratifying and will do much toward conciliating our people."

The terms and acceptance were drafted in final form and singed by Lee and Grant. In little more than an hour the ceremony was over.

On April 12 Lee's veterans marched as a unit for the last time. Crossing the Appomattox at a shallow ford, they filed up the steep hill and past lines of blue-clad soldiers to stack their arms and battle flags in the village. Many wept as they laid their battle flags across the weapons, but some tore the banners into bits, rather than surrender them, and passed out the pieces. All told, 28,231 Confederates were paroled at Appomattox, as Federals watched silently or stood guard in the village.

Though a few other units would yet have to surrender, and the confederate political leaders were still at large, the war was now over. In McLean's yard, violets and daffodils bloomed in a requiem of sorts, and tomorrow the sun would rise on one Nation, not two.
